

E-Mail Addresses As Public Records

Under Florida law, e-mail addresses are public records. If you do not want your e-mail address released in response to a public records request, do not send electronic mail to this entity.

Instead, contact this office by phone or in writing.

The screenshot shows a web browser window with the URL "http://www.floridaga.gov/privacy.html". The page title is "Privacy Policy". The page content discusses the handling of personal information on the website, stating that while the web server logs IP addresses, it does not record personal e-mail addresses or other personal information. It also notes that information provided in feedback forms or conference registration forms can be considered public records under Florida's Sunshine Law. The page ends with a note about contacting the office for further questions.

Privacy Policy

Thank you for visiting the Florida Attorney General's website. Your privacy is very important to us. When you visit our website, the Web server automatically recognizes only the Internet domain and IP address from which you accessed the site, but does not record this information or otherwise result in the identification of your personal e-mail address or other personal information. This site does not use cookies.

If you choose to provide information in a feedback form, conference registration form or other form on this site, unless specifically exempted by Florida Statute, such information is a public record under Florida's Government in the Sunshine Law and available for public inspection upon demand.
